Achievements

In an AI world, build a culture of humanity in the workplace for:

- More meaning
- Deeper Connections
- True fulfillment

Highlights

As a humanitarian, Mallory Brown uses empathy and a focus on the person, rather than the problem, to create the positive change. Her current documentary series, “Walk A Mile”, embarks on a global marathon for women’s empowerment.

As a keynote speaker, Mallory shares the humanitarian mindset, with real-life stories of human connection, to provide tools to help attendees take one step further to discover a deeper meaning of success.

Mallory Brown's Bio

Mallory Brown is a worldwide adventure traveler, documentary filmmaker, and global humanitarian. She travels the world to tell real-life stories of human connection.

Mallory’s goal is to encourage others to add more meaning to their work and reignite their own desire to make a difference. She has traveled to over 60 countries, started two socially conscious businesses, and raised hundreds of thousands of dollars to fight international poverty.

Mallory's latest campaign, "Walk A Mile," is a global marathon for women's empowerment. She's walking a marathon, one mile at a time, with 26 impoverished women around the world. 26 miles. 26 women. 26 stories of strength. Each mile benefits a local women's charity.

Mallory's story inspires others to live a passionate, generous, and global life. Her efforts have been featured by the Today Show, The New York Times, Crain's Detroit Business, the Huffington Post, and Cosmopolitan Magazine. Mallory was born and raised in Michigan and currently lives on the edge of Detroit.
